Council Should Consider

Reviewing the final production website online, which is scheduled to go live on January 24. Staff will review the prominent navigation and content changes that have been made during the past year, which will be reflected in the new site. The changes will be reviewed, alongside the goals for the redesign. We will review the online production site and its full functionality, rather than static pdf documents.

Background

This is a final review of the site. The Council previously approved the design and color choices. However, changes to navigation, content and images can and will continue to be made, based on user experiences with the site. The website is never completely done. There is a need for continuous updates.
